NO REVOLUTION.

To the Editor of the Alexandria Gazette: Previous to the assembling of the democratic convention at Chicago, and at a time when the most sanguine members of the party were in the "slough of despond," as to any hope of carrying the next election for President you outlined a platform which you thought would give them a good "fighting chance" of success. Your suggestions seem to have been adopted, and the sequel shows how entirely right you were.

The platform having been adopted, the convention by the force of some happy combination of circumstances placed upon it a standard bearer who is surely one of the most remarkable men of the times. Young, vigorous, bold and aggressive, he is plainly striking terror into the ranks of his adversaries. Epithets are daily hurled at him. He is called anarchist and communist. Compared with the flippant orators of the republican party, with Camille Desmoulins, "Forquiere-Tiville" and other conspicuous figures of the terrible French revolution. Heedless of all this abuse, conscious of his own patriotism and rectitude of purpose, and remembering that the wise "hard of Avon" said "be thou as pure as snow and chaste as ice, thou shalt not escape calumny." Waving aloft the democratic standard he is seen constantly undaunted and alert like Ulysses the Hittite, in the very fire front of battle, challenging the admiration of all impartial minds.

Your talented townsman, Mr. John M. Johnson, in his recent able and exhaustive speech at the Opera House upon the financial question, likens that issue to the "irrepressible conflict." He never made a more apt comparison. At the same time, as you often state in your editorials, there are other questions involved in this contest of equal, if not paramount import, and one is the question of taxation. The students of history will find that among the many causes that led to the French revolution none was more potent than the inequality of taxation, which abuse fell particularly hard upon the farmers and small land owners. The culmination was finally reached and the revolution hastened when the atrocious "gabelle" (salt tax) was enacted. The poor people in the rural districts trained their dogs to go to and fro by night on lonely and unfrequented paths across the frontier, with little bags of salt tied around their necks. The many attempts at reform were not nearly so much opposed by the noblesse and aristocratic elements in France as by that class known there then as "voluntiers" who correspond with those known here as plutocrats, rich parvenues, syndicates, trust combin's, &c., who so persistently oppose and prevent the levying of an income tax. You frequently say that in the event of the election of the republican ticket, you see nothing to look forward to but the "man on horseback." Heaven grant that you may be wrong in your prediction in this case. Before the appearance of the "man on horseback" (Napoleon) such scenes were enacted in France, the mere contemplation of which to this day makes the blood run cold. More than one million human beings were butchered before the thirst for blood was appeased. You and I, Mr. Editor, have both looked upon the dreadful front of war once, and in the language of the immortal "Sir John," "No more of that, Hal and thou lovest me."

No matter what party wins the election let us all humbly pray to an ever benign and merciful Providence to spare our country, all wars and revolutions.

THE APPROACHING COMETS.—Three comets are approaching the earth at a speed of something over a million miles an hour. One of them is apparently travelling a path which will bring it very close to the earth. Two of these comets are well known to astronomers, but the third celestial visitor is a stranger. It made its appearance in the heavens about twelve days ago, and has been named Ciccopini's comet—after the Italian astronomer who discovered it. Only two satisfactory observations of it have as yet been taken, and its exact path is not definitely known—but enough, has been observed through the large telescopes to determine the fact that it is rushing toward the earth at a rate that will bring it in plain view in about three weeks.

NEW MARINE MONSTERS.—The three most powerful battle ships ever planned for any country have been designed for the United States navy. Their construction will begin as soon as possible, and it is estimated that they will be completed within three years. Moving at a speed of sixteen knots an hour, one of these steel fortresses will be able to discharge 6,000 pounds of metal at a time, is resistible by anything afloat within 4,000 yards. It is understood that they will be named California, Alabama and Pennsylvania.

HAD A FLEA IN HIS EAR.—A buzz saw and a thousand trip hammers are not an item, in Adolphus Do-cour's mind, compared to the noises produced by a flea whetting its sting against an ear-drum. Last Saturday, in New York, a flea hopped into his ear, and staid itself for business. After hours of agony, and when every domestic remedy had been exhausted, a doc brought the flea to light by flooding the affected ear.
